I am not a big eBook reader so I am not sure. You can't really expect me to write about something I know nothing about. Needless to say, it's a topic that I would never cover on my blog. So this is your introduction? If you want an introduction then write one on behalf of the blog and send it to me and I will publish it as necessary. Otherwise, just let me know what you need help with and we can discuss how we can handle this together. What should I write about? There's only really one article that you need to write and that is the one to introduce your blog. Think about it like this: If you were not a blogger and someone asked you what your blog was about, how would you answer them? That will be the post that we use as a starting point. There are other things that we can include but that's the main idea. But I already answered this question in an email? Why do I need to do it again here? This is your introduction. Let's consider it our meeting of the project manager and client discussing what needs to be done with an emphasis on both clarity and personality. We need to get to know each other and we need to understand what you want. We're doing this together. You can come up with the content and I'll publish it for you. We just need to agree on the framework and that will be good enough for me. Just tell me what you want and we can do it together. We're not doing this together! I'm not going to write a book even though I told you so in an email!. This is my blog and if you want something written, then hire your own writer! From what I've seen, this is your blog too since most of the posts are about things that interest you. There's other stuff on here too, but you're an artist and this is your blog. If you want to write about that other stuff then that's your call. I'm just suggesting that we write about what interests both of us and share it with the world. I like to be able to do different things for different people and I like writing too. The only thing is that I prefer to share my words in bite-sized pieces; not a whole book. Then we'll need to work together and see what we can do about making this book happen. It's aimed at beginning bloggers, but has enough information for any level of blogger (or anyone who wants to use GIT). This is about getting the blog community to accept the advance of technology and it's also about helping new bloggers understand how they can improve their blogging. I want to be honest and upfront and not pretend that I know everything. This book has been planned for over a year and I've been working on it ever since. It's got my full attention and I'm putting in my 10,000 hours. If you think you can help me with this then we'll need to work together so that we can both get what we want out of this venture.
